BULLETIN
Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Earl Rowland of Wichita, Kansas, in his Cessna A monoplane, led the class A trans-continental fliers into Kansas City today landing at Richards Airport at 12:43 p. m.

He wins, also, a cash prize given by the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce for the fastest time between St. Louis and this city.

BULLETIN
Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Class B and C races in the New York-Los Angeles air derby were postponed today until tomorrow at 6 A. M. on account of rain, fog and low ceiling.

St. Louis, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Holding his lead in the trans-continental air race, Earl Rowland of Wichita, Kan., arrived at Lambert-St. Louis air field here at 10:21 A. M. today in his Cessna A monoplane.

Robert Duke of Pittsburgh came in second at 10:35 A. M., in his American Moth plane.

W. F. Emery of Bradford, Pa., was the third racer to complete the hop from Terre Haute, Ind. He arrived at 10:49 A. M., as Rowland, who had rested for 30 minutes, took off for Kansas City.

TWO PLANES DOWN
Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Harry Snedley of Kansas City, pilot of plane number 23, an Eagle Rock, and accompanied by Dr. George L. Bennett, also of Kansas City, in the trans-continental air derby, was forced down in a field about 20 miles south of here while en route from Columbus, O., to Terre Haute.

A blown cylinder head caused the landing, and according to Snedley they will be unable to continue.

Snedley left Columbus at 8:10 A. M. He stated that he and Dr. Bennett, the owner of the plane, will go by train to Kansas City and that mechanics will be sent back after the damaged plane.

A plane, believed to have been piloted by J. W. Hunt of Moundsville, W. Va., was reported down in a field about six miles west of Rushville, Ind., but details were lacking.

ROWLAND HOLDS LEAD
Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Earl Rowland of Wichita, Kansas, flying a Cessna model A, was the first of the cross-country airplane racers to arrive here this morning from Columbus, Ohio, on the second day of the air derby. Rowland landed here at 8:37 A. M. Central standard time.

Rowland left Columbus at 7:50 A. M. Eastern standard time.

Six other fliers had landed by 9 o'clock Central time. The aviators were to remain here only 30 minutes to refuel and go over their motors after which they were to depart for St. Louis.

Robert Duke of Pittsburgh, flying an American Moth, was second, landing at 8:45 A. M.

W. H. Emery in a Travelair, arrived at 8:52 A. M.; Tex Rankin in a Waco Ten at 8:55 A. M.; J. S. Charles in an Eagle Rock at 8:59 A. M., and E. J. Detmer using a Travelair landed at 9 o'clock.

The aviators continued to land at intervals. They departed for St. Louis in the order of their arrival. By 9:30 o'clock sixteen had checked in.

STARTED IN MIST
Columbus, O., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The class A air derby from New York to Los Angeles, with 31 planes surviving the first day's flight, got underway from Norton Field here at 7:50 A. M. this morning. Earl Rowland took the air exactly at that hour and the derby was again on.

Robert Duke, Pittsburgh, in his American Moth, and W. N. Emery, Jr., Bradford, Pa., in a Travelair, followed Rowland at one minute intervals into the air. The fliers were sent out in the order in which they arrived yesterday from Roosevelt Field, N. Y.

Early today a heavy rain was falling and officials deferred the start until flying conditions became more favorable.

"Billion Dollar Bank" for Chicago Result of Merger

Chicago, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The Tribune today said the consolidation of the Continental National Bank & Trust Company and the Illinois Merchants Trust Company was virtually completed, awaiting only approval of final terms by directors of both institutions tomorrow.

If the consolidation is effected, combined assets of $1,125,000,000 would make the bank second only to the National City Bank of New York, and would give the middle-west its first "billion dollar bank."

PRESIDENT AND WIFE PREPARING TO LEAVE LODGE

Vacation in Northern Wisconsin Nearing End; Packing

Superior, Wis., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Packing took hold of the summer White House in earnest today.

With President Coolidge's return to Washington only a few days off, the time had come today for almost last minute preparations. Most of the household linen was packed away in trunks and boxes while the Chief Executive's bulkier personal effects such as books and papers were also packed.

Leaving such preparations to Mrs. Coolidge and the White House attendants, President Coolidge tried to make the most of his last chances for an open air life before returning to the capital, stating that his fishing rod would be the last thing to be packed. He had arranged last night to fish as usual this morning in one of the private lakes on the Cedar Island Lodge estate.

The Chief Executive found time, however, to study the results of the Wisconsin state and national primaries, held Tuesday, the results of which were not complete by last night.

NEW DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEEMAN TO KEEP OLD PLACE

Donovan Chosen Successor to Brennan by Committee

Chicago, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Thomas F. Donovan of Joliet, on whose shoulders falls the mantle worn for years by the late George E. Brennan as a result of his choice yesterday at Springfield to succeed Mr. Brennan as Democratic National Committeeman in Illinois, will be able to direct the destinies of Illinois democracy this fall from two seats of authority.

In addition to becoming the National Committeeman he will retain temporarily at least the office of chairman of the state committee, of which he has been a member continuously since 1912 and intermittently for more than 30 years, having thrice served as its chairman.

After his selection as National Committeeman Mr. Donovan at Springfield intimated that he might relinquish the post, however, after the November election, having expressed a desire to retire from politics and take a rest. In such an event the Democrats would be faced with the task of picking a new head for the second time in almost as few months.

Active in Politics
Donovan has long been identified with downstate Democratic politics and this fact alone was partly responsible for his selection. His only opponent was Michael Igoe of Chicago, minority leader in the House of Representatives, but the state committee decided on the choice of a downstate man. Mr. Igoe's name was withdrawn.

Mr. Donovan was first elected a member of the state committee in 1896 and since 1912 has served as a member consecutively, being chosen three times as state chairman. He was born in 1870 in Livingston county and graduated from the University of Indiana. He moved to Kansas in 1897 and to 1905 he served as City Attorney there. When the county was redistricted he later moved to Joliet and since 1923 had served as chairman of the Joliet Police and Fire Commission in addition to his other duties.

He predicted a Democratic state and national victory in November in a short talk to the state committee at Springfield following his election.

Wales and Brother to Hunt in Africa

London, Eng., Sept. 16.—(AP)—The Prince of Wales and his handsome younger brother, the Duke of Gloucester, left London at 3:45 p. m. today enroute for a big game hunt and empire good will campaign in Africa.

They departed without the least ceremony, traveling to Dover on an ordinary train. They will cross to France and after traveling through that country will sail for Marseilles.

For days the two adventures and popular sons of King George have been busy packing for the trip while the newspapers of London have been carrying accounts and pictures of regions and the black people they will see.

Sailing from Marseilles the Prince and his brother will go to Alexandria and then to Cairo and from there by motor to Ismailia on the Suez Canal. Here the British India steamer Madia will embark them for Mombassa, and there they will enter for the interior of Kenya.

The trip for the Prince of Wales holds heavy burdens of official duties. It is another one of those empire-building drives in which the heir to the throne is already an experienced campaigner.

Propose Removal of Two River Islands

Beardstown, Ill., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Removal of Grape and Bar Islands from the Illinois river below Beardstown, giving the river 1,200 feet more channel, was suggested to the legislative commission on flood control at its hearing here today.

Engineers also suggested that the LaGrange locks and dam be removed and a collapsible dam, such as is used on the Ohio river, be substituted.

From Springfield came a delegation headed by Commissioners Willis J. Spaulding, Harry B. Luers and Joseph M. Figueroa to advocate state and federal aid in building the proposed Lake Springfield, as a means of halting inundations. State Senator Andrew S. Cuthbertson of Bunker Hill, presided over the sessions.

Not For Hoover

Washington, Sept. 6.—(AP)—When Mrs. Francis Berger Moran turned over her Massachusetts Avenue home to Herbert Hoover to be used as his political headquarters it did not mean she would vote for him.

She explained to a meeting of Democratic women last night that her vote, to be cast in Virginia, would be for Governor Smith, and that the immediate reason for the lease of the house was a desire for some cash with which to help a grandson who had a chance to "swing a deal." Mrs. Moran is now living in her Wyoming Avenue home.

OVER 2,000 PUPILS START SCHOOL IN DIXON: RECORD OF FORMER YEARS BROKEN

Schools of the City are Crowded to Limit: Figures Given

The total enrollment of pupils and students in the Dixon high and grade schools this afternoon had reached a new record in the history of the city's schools and Superintendent L. B. Potter cheerfully announced that before the close of the day 2,000 students would be registered. Since the opening of the schools Tuesday morning Superintendent Potter has been busy with his assistants in relieving congested conditions in the grade schools. The list given out early this afternoon compared with the registration for last year was as follows:

Truman school	1828	1927
Woodworth school	80	70
C. C. Smith school	104	119
South Central school	324	254
North Central school	369	365
Loveland school	410	348
Total	1042	1012

The above figures show that every one of the public schools with the exception of the Woodworth building enjoyed an increase in enrollment this year.

The high schools showed a registration of 604 students at noon today against 557 last year. In the north high school building the enrollment reached 161 students and at the south side building, the registration reached the figure of 443 students, making a grand total of 1,995 pupils and students enrolled in the city's public schools and this figure promised to reach the 2,000 mark by the close of the classes this afternoon as registrations are still coming in at all of the buildings.

Several transfers were necessary in the grade buildings in order to accommodate the large classes. The school board also found it necessary to secure additional space at the Y. M. C. A. building for the accommodation of the kindergarten pupils, where the enrollment is the largest in the history of the city's school system.

Enrollments in the freshmen classes in both high schools passed the 200 mark, registrations at noon totaling 209.

ROBINSON SEES NO CAUSE FOR WORRY, HE SAYS

Democratic Nominee for Vice Presidency in Tennessee

Robinson Special Car enroute to Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Expressing optimism over information gathered on his trip in Texas and Arkansas as to conditions in those two states, Senator Joe T. Robinson moved today into Tennessee, the only southern state so far selected by Herbert Hoover for a campaign address.

An even month, however, will elapse between the firing by the Democratic vice presidential nominee of his opening campaign broadside in the state and the date, October six, selected by the Republican presidential nominee for his address at Elizabethton.

While Mr. Robinson has expressed no apprehension over the loyalty of Tennessee to the Democratic standard, some regard the state as doubtful and many Republicans have claimed it will be found in the Hoover column in November.

Mr. Robinson has three speeches scheduled in the state. The first will be at Nashville at 9 o'clock tonight.

He then will speak on successive days at Chattanooga and Knoxville before journeying into Virginia and thence southward along the Atlantic seaboard.

Upon his return from a two day swing into Texas, the Senator was welcomed back to his home state of Arkansas by a crowd at Texarkana. As the train pulled into the station, a crowd headed by a band gathered around the platform of the private car and applauded the Senator when he appeared.

The elder Fauverque, employed as a loader, was watching efforts of his brother to dislodge loose rock from a section of the mine when the roof crumbled. A section seven feet long struck Rene, crushing his skull; another section hit the younger brother, breaking several vertebrae.

The two are survived by their widows, their parents, one brother, Doremi Jr., and two sisters. Both were recently married.

NO. DAKOTA G. O. P. SPLIT OVER HOOVER AND PLATFORM

Non-Partisan League's Action Refusal to Support Ticket

Bismarck, N. D., Sept. 6.—(AP)—North Dakota Republicans today had split over the question of supporting Herbert Hoover for president.

The Non-Partisan League faction of the party was on record as refusing to endorse Hoover's candidacy, while the Independent Republicans are backing the former Secretary of Commerce.

The action came at a meeting here yesterday, called to organize the Republican State Central committee. The Independents offered a resolution endorsing Mr. Hoover and his stand on agriculture. This was defeated by a vote of 19 to 9.

As a result, he independents or "Regular Republicans" organized separately and decided to carry on a vigorous campaign for the national ticket, as nominated at Kansas City. The Non-partisans in their resolutions criticized Mr. Hoover as a "tool of big business" and asserted that the Republican party had strayed from its original course. The resolutions made it clear that the action was based on a lack of faith in the Republican party and its candidates rather than an endorsement of Gov. Alfred E. Stearns.

The Democratic state central committee also met here yesterday and unanimously placed its approval on the party's national platform and ticket headed by Gov. Smith and Senator Joseph T. Robinson.

The question of agricultural relief is the great issue before the people, according to the committee's resolutions, which added that the Democratic National convention has promised an organization through which agriculture may work out and apply its own remedies as well as receiving government aid through a federal farm board.

Mission Treasurer is Short $1,000,000

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention today had announced itself unable to pay current salaries due to the discovery of a $1,000,000 shortage in accounts of Clinton Carnes, treasurer, who disappeared August 15.

Developments piled high yesterday as a special audit committee headed by Dr. C. W. Daniel of Richmond, Va., dug deeper into the affairs of the board and Carnes, before taking temporary adjournment.

The committee was able to announce the approximate size of the shortage after it was found that Carnes kept a secret file in which were entered special loan transactions with more than 150 banks in the south, transactions which never came under the scrutiny of regular auditors or of the church.

Criminal court proceedings were indicated in the announced determination of Assistant Solicitor General Ed A. Stephens to begin grand jury proceedings against the missing treasurer as soon as practicable. He began conferences with the joint church committee for that purpose.

Seeking to Avert Strike of Trainmen

Chicago, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Leaders of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors were still in conference here today discussing possibilities of a peace plan for settling their wage increase dispute with 55 western railroads.

While the conference has been in progress all week no reports of what has been done have been made. The unions, numbering 70,000 employees, are understood to have voted almost unanimously for a strike but the actual result of the strike vote likewise has not been made public.

The union leaders are to have a conference with the railroad managers next week and were hoping to decide on a plan for mediation at their conference this week.

To Arraign Slayer of Teacher Sept. 24

Chicago, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Arraignment of David Shanks, Negro book-baker, charged with the murder of Miss Jennie Constance, a college teacher, today was set for Sept. 24 despite a request by Shanks' lawyer for more time to prepare for trial.

Shanks confessed to police that he killed Miss Constance to rob her. He lay in wait for his victim behind a hedge in Evanston, a suburb, and struck her over the head with an iron bar as she was returning home from the Northwestern University library. She was taking post-graduate work at the University. A watch, the only loot taken by Shanks, led to his arrest.

Two Fliers Killed

The men were taking a practice flight. The plane had just taken off and reached an altitude of about 600 feet when suddenly one of the wings crumpled. Both men were killed almost instantly as the plane hit the ground.

Doctor Made Good His Promise that He Would Escape

Paris, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Dr. Pierre Bougrat, who declared in open court when convicted of murder, "I will escape," has made good his word in France's penal colony in the tropical forest of French Guiana.

Dr. Bougrat and two others escaped from the hospital at St. Louis Maroni, off which is the notorious Devil's Island, where incorrigible prisoners are sent.

The doctor had always maintained he was innocent and his lawyer was so convinced of his client's blamelessness that he wrote a book which caused his disbarment.

Dr. Bougrat, a brilliant Marseilles physician who was decorated in the war for valor, was sentenced to the penal settlement for life in March 1927 for killing Paul Rumebe, a war comrade and patient. The body was found hidden in a clothes closet in the doctor's office.

Washout Resulted in Fatal Accident in South Carolina

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Two trainmen were killed, a third is missing and twenty-five passengers were marooned all night three miles from the South Carolina state capital last night when a passenger train engine plunged into an unreported washout.

Engineer D. B. Poore and fireman J. P. Ratner were killed when the engine toppled from the track and buried itself in the mud. J. E. Glenn, a pilot, is missing.

Passengers on the train, confused and excited, huddled into the one passenger coach which did not leave the track and remained all night awaiting help, while Conductor Eskew made his way through the storm to a telephone some miles distant.

New peak prices were established in the first half hour of trading by Park & Tilford, Kolster Radio, Calumet & Hecla, American Safety Razor and Chrysler. Wright, Curtiss, Pacific Gas & Electric, Montgomery Ward, Commercial Solvents and Koss Insurance recorded early gains of 2 points or so.

There were a few soft spots, notably General Motors, Radio and Warner Bros. Common, all of which yielded 1 to 2½.

Foreign exchanges opened steady with sterling cables unchanged at $4.85½.

Prices of some of the old time pace-makers faded away under a heavy cross of selling orders. Radio lost 6 points and General Motors half as much. The effect of their weakness on speculative sentiment was counteracted by the sudden upward rush of U. S. Steel to 156½-2, the highest of the year.

The old renewal rate of 7-1-2 for call loans was still in force.

The closing was irregular. Constructive interests made valiant efforts to maintain the rise by pushing up individual shares in the final hour, regardless of credit conditions. A block of 15,000 shares of Briggs Manufacturing was absorbed on its way up to new high ground above 47. Purity Baking ran up 8 points to 115½, and Republic Iron & Steel climbed 4 to 70, both new maximums for the year. Lambert rose 5 points and Curtiss Aero was again striding upward fast at the end. Learn What White of Egg is Made Of Chicago.—(AP)—While the general public has known for a long time that it was the yolk of an egg that is cowardly—it hits and then runs—science has just found out what the white is all about.

The fifth separate and distinct protein making up the white of eggs has been determined by Dr. Arthur G. Cole, of the college of medicine of the University of Illinois located here, it was announced today. Doctor Cole had previously determined the four others. These five proteins constitute the total protein content of egg white, one of the goods particularly rich in proteins. And the protein, it may be explained, is that material in diet so essential for normal life and growth of all higher animals.

"The countless proteins found in nature are so uniform in composition that it is impossible to use the ordinary chemical methods for their identification," Doctor Cole explained. "For this purpose we made use of the extremely delicate biological or immunological reactions which are so sensitive that it is possible to detect a specific protein in solutions containing as little as one part in ten million of that particular protein."

"Proteins are present in all vegetable and animal cells and constitute an essential part of the living protoplasm of these cells. During digestion the proteins are broken down into simple units called amino acids which are absorbed by the blood and carried to all parts of the body where they are built up into proteins characteristic of species of the animal or even of the specific organ to which they are brought. In this way, body cells are built up and growth takes place."

"The white of the hen's egg contains about ten per cent protein, the remainder being mostly water. We have been able to show that the egg white is composed of five proteins known as ovomucin, ovalbumin, ovalbumin, conalbumin and ovomucoid. Of these ovomucin imparts to the egg white its characteristic sliminess while the property of solidifying when boiled characteristic of albumin, is responsible for the change which eggs undergo when cooked."

When Children Seem to be Lazy

By CHARLES E. BOYNTON, M. D.

Atlanta, Ga.

Member Gorgas Memorial

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. President Coolidge is the honorary president of the Gorgas Memorial, which has its headquarters at 1331 G Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.)

The normal child, in my opinion, is not lazy. On the contrary the normal child is overflowing with enthusiasm and energy. It is always active. Therefore, if a child appears to be lazy, he is mentally or physically sick.

To correct this laziness, the parents should not scold the child but should seek to discover the cause by consulting a competent physician.

If your child is lazy, you can be sure he does not feel well. The trouble may be trivial or of short duration, or it may be the beginning of a malady leading to very serious results. The safest way to find out just what is the trouble is to consult a competent physician. Give the child the benefit of the doubt. Don't scold him—help him.

Every healthy good feeder should be more or less lazy after each meal to allow for proper digestion. This, however, should pass and pandemonium reign.

If the laziness tends to become continuous, it may be due to a chronic intestinal indigestion with its accompanying symptoms. The standing or sitting posture may be altogether incorrect with resulting flatulence. A beginning, but deep seated, tubercular infection may be at work. The blood may be thin from a simple or more serious anemia. Hookworm or other intestinal parasites may be present. Some of the glands of intestinal secretion, especially the thyroid, may not be working efficiently, and consequently the slow movements of body and mind may be incorrectly interpreted as laziness.

The eyesight may be defective, with the resulting exhaustion due to eyestrain. Correct glasses may do away with the lethargy. Adenoids or enlarged tonsils may prevent enough oxygen entering the lungs to give energy to the body. These same causes may prevent sound refreshing sleep.

Too late hours, with not enough sleep; with older children too much reading with not enough out-of-door exercise, too many moving pictures in stuffy rooms, too many late dances, too many "dates," all lead to exhaustion which is often called laziness.

During the changes which occur at puberty, that period during which the individual is neither child nor adult, laziness is often a symptom. The internal changes are making great demands upon the vitality and resources of the body. Laziness at this time is to be encouraged, rather than to call forth temper on the part of the parents. It will pass off after the changes take place.

The natural inheritance of children should be health, happiness and energy expressed in the constant desire to be doing something. If these characteristics are not present, we grown-ups should not be in too big a hurry to hard down our judgment as "just lazy." In the majority of cases we should be wrong and perhaps find out our error too late to remedy the trouble.

Parental sympathy and intelligent study of the child will probably lead to a correct diagnosis.

Bull Campaign on N. Y. Stock Exchange

New York, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The bull campaign on the New York Stock Exchange rallied this afternoon from a temporary setback at midday and sent the prices of many speculative favorites soaring in the final dealings.

Curtiss Aero was shot up $13 to $149, and independent steels were heavily accumulated, several, including Otis and Republic, rising to new highs for the year, while Sloss Sheffield made an extreme gain of $8. Purity Baking, long inactive, also rose $8, while Briggs Manufacturing, Lambert and a number of other specialties rose $5 to $6.

The midday setback was caused in part by a rise in the call loan rate from 7½ to 8 per cent.

IT'S ALWAYS SPRINGTIME—
It's always springtime to the man who's heart is light and gay. Who has a cordial shake of hand and friendly word to say; Who never frowns when things go wry, nor stamps his feet and swears. But simply takes the little jolt that smites him unawares.

Life's pathway is a mingling of all that's good and bad. But you don't have the troubles that some other fellows had. Just stop and look around you and you're sure to always find Somebody else who has more woe than ever in your mind.

You'll see some fellow crippled—has no legs nor arms at all; Another man has broken ribs he suffered by a fall; Another, scared and maimed for aye you'll find along life's path; Then you'll begin to see that you escaped misfortune's wrath.

You only have the shadows which are transient, vanish soon; The other never sees the jovial harvest moon; Your shades of grief are very dim compared to his deep gloom. Because when shadows steal away, for sunshine there is room.

It's always sunny springtime to the one who does his best To soothe away the petty frills with joyous word and jest; Who watches for the rift in clouds or sorrow and of grief. And sees a bright tomorrow coming which portends relief.

—Bela R. Halderman, Franklin Grove.

BRIDES DEFYING HOODOO WITH "GREEN" WEDDINGS

London.—(AP)—London brides are defying superstition by having "green" weddings this summer. At the marriage of the Hon. Ursula Spencer, daughter of Viscount Churchill, to Mr. A. F. Tod of the Royal Horse Artillery, recently celebrated at fashionable St. Thomas' church, both little train-bearers and the two young bridesmaids were garbed in leaf-green taffetas, the girls in picture frocks with wreaths of green leaves in their hair, and the boys in frilly suits. The color scheme contrasted prettily with the bride's gown of gold lame, clouded in a filmy tulle veil, and several other prospective society brides have declared their intention of following the "green" precedent.

The wedding passed off without a hitch, in spite of the warnings of the older generation.

Short Interviews with Famous Women

By NEA Service

"New York is really Main Street after all, if you judge by the emphasis laid on personal, neighborly service that the big metropolitan hotels supply their guests," says Kate Pierce Thayer, social director of the Roosevelt Hotel, the woman who inaugurated the first supervised playroom for children.

"This is an era of supplying out-of-town with all the personal things they have at home. If a guest wants someone with whom to discuss whether to buy a brown chiffon dress for evening or a pink satin; if a man wants to buy a gift for the wife; if girls need a chaperone for a night-club party—the hotel's personal service staff comes to the rescue.

"In this line of work nothing surprises us. We may be matrons of honor at a wedding, may take charge of a sick room and even see a guest to the ether room for an operation at a hospital.

"One of the chief services modern hotels render is to hold and return articles lost or left. We have mailed out everything from a single false tooth to sable coats."

Emmerson Speaks to Women Voters

Chicago, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Addressing the Woman's Roosevelt Republican Club today Louis L. Emmerson, Republican nominee for governor declared that the voters' choice between Republican and Democratic nominees at the fall election is a choice between "candidate chosen by the people and candidates selected by a political machine."

"In the primary last spring," he said, "more than 1,600,000 voters expressed their preference for the present Republican candidates. The Democratic state candidates, on the other hand, were selected by a political machine which has dominated that party for many years. The machine saw to it that there were no contests."

Mr. Emmerson recommended that the record of the Democratic candidate for governor, Floyd E. Thompson, be "carefully scanned" by voters, especially "his eight years as state attorney of Rock Island county when one of the worst crime and vice syndicates that ever operated in this state thrived and was disbanded and its leaders sent to the penitentiary only after his term of office."

No alliance between crime and politics can succeed, Mr. Emmerson said, when voters are sufficiently aroused to come to the polls in large numbers. He urged more general interest in politics as a cure for all government evils.

Praises Women

Participation of women in public life, he said, has brought higher political standards. "I have always believed," he said, "that the greatest menace to our public life is indifference of a large part of the electorate to their duty as voters. The stay-at-home vote is the best asset of those who seek power for questionable purposes.

"It is all very well to call out against the criminal in politics, but it is much more important that some missionary work be done among our citizens to impress upon them the tremendous necessity of exercising their right of franchise. "And as the exercise of the franchise is the most important duty of the citizen, so is election fraud which robs the voter of his right of decision one of the greatest crimes. The criminal who steals votes or stuffs the ballot box with illegal ballots is one of the most sinister enemies of good government. No nation can long endure which does not provide ample protection for the ballot."

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

The whole family is on the war-path with mother. Mother must take a vacation, insists the family. She's in a rut. She has the idea that she's old. She doesn't want to do anything but stay at home, and it's perfectly ridiculous at her age.

To be sure, the family admits that mother, aged 68, can't go off on an auto tour or a camping trip. She has rheumatism and her limbs ache and all that. But there's no earthly reason why she can't take a boat trip. They'll take her to the boat, get her ensconced in her stateroom, and she won't have a thing to worry about—no tickets, no baggage, no changes, and when the boat gets back they'll meet her right in her stateroom, drive her home, and everything will be as easy as pie.

It sounds almost convincing. But it just happens that mother doesn't want a vacation. She wants nothing more than to stay with her two canaries and her eight white Plymouth Rock pullets that keep her in fresh eggs, her vegetable garden—"Why, I'll have sweet corn in a week," she says, "and wouldn't it be a great note to run off just as the tomatoes are so nice?"

Mother has a couch by the dining room window where she takes her nap every afternoon, a cool breeze blowing in from the garden. Mother has her swing and her hammock and her flower garden and her new magazine, and her neighbors and the grandchildren coming in for cookies, and mother asks nothing more from life than to be let alone to enjoy her own sweet routine.

As a matter of fact, mother has been planning the quiet, restful serene two weeks she would have at home when all the family had gone its each and separate ways on its vacations. Mother has reached the age when she likes quiet and solitude. But the family never quite understands it. The family tries so hard to be kind to mother, and their form of kindness is exactly what mother doesn't want.

They reason that because mother had had a large family and been used to people about all her life she's going to be terribly lonely and unhappy if there isn't something going on around the house all the time.

So, out of consideration for mother, they make a special point of always arranging to have somebody home, to have people in, to give parties and make a great-to-do with radio and piano and phonograph, when mother wants her quiet evenings with her new magazines.

The vacation insistence on the part of the family is a product of this same lack of understanding. The rest of the family like vacations; ergo mother should.

This insistence on selecting other people's types of pleasure is not confined to sons and daughters. It's a universal human trait brought to the front in many human relationships.

ENJOY VISIT AT MARQUETTE MICHIGAN—

Contractor Mark D. Smith and wife of this city, and daughter, Miss Dora Smith, of Chicago, are spending a couple of weeks in and around Marquette, Michigan.

Sullivan-Ritchie Wedding Announced

The marriage of Miss Arvilla Margaret Ritchie of Morrison and Gerald L. Sullivan of Sterling was an event of high noon on Wednesday at the St. Cornelius parish house in Chicago. The rites were performed by Rev. Father Lyons, pastor of the church.

Following the ceremony, which was witnessed by immediate relatives of the couple, a wedding breakfast was served at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Wednesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan left for a wedding trip to Breezy Point, a summer resort in northern Minnesota, where they will remain for a week or 10 days.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Ritchie of Morrison. For several years she has been engaged as a teacher in the public schools of Seattle, Washington, spending her summer vacations with her parents in Morrison. Mrs. Sullivan is a charming young lady, with a pleasing personality. She has a wide circle of friends in Morrison and Sterling.

The groom is a young business man of Sterling, being a member of the firm of Sullivan and O'Maley clothing and gents' furnishing store. Mr. Sullivan is a native of Evanston, Ill., the son of Mrs. Josephine Sullivan of that place. Prior to going to Sterling to enter business 13 years ago, he was employed as a traveling salesman. He has been active in the business and civic activities of that city and has many friends who join in wishing him and Mrs. Sullivan unbounded joy and happiness.

Upon return from their honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan will reside in Sterling.

Another Dixon Girl to Wed

Last evening, Miss Alice Heller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Heller of West street, entertained a company of sixteen friends at a bridge at which time she announced her engagement to Edward Rock, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Rock, of this city. The marriage is to take place late this month.

There were sixteen guests present, all of whom spent a most delightful evening. Mrs. Lenore Hunt was awarded the favor for high honors at bridge.

Garden flowers were employed in decorating the home, the decorations being in pink and green. The nut cups and favors were also in these pretty shades and the announcement of the engagement was on pink and green tinted cards. The announcement of the approaching marriage of these popular young people comes as a happy surprise to all their friends who wish them in advance, much joy and happiness.

Edward Rock is employed at the Rogers printing plant, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Rock of this city, and brother of Dr. Wm. Rock of Sterling.

Miss Heller is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Heller and has many friends in Dixon and Sterling. She is now employed in the Brown Shoe Co.

Knapp-Snow Wedding in Harmon

Jacob Knapp and Mrs. Geneva Snow of Harmon, were united in marriage on Aug. 25th, at the Methodist church in that town, by the pastor, Rev. Hugh McKeon, at 8 o'clock in the evening.

The best man was L. Hornback, and the maid of honor was Gladys Hornback, sister of the bride. The bride was beautifully gowned in white silk lace over white georgette and carried a lovely bouquet of garden flowers. Mrs. Evelyn Kranov presided at the organ and played the wedding music, the march and the recessional, and accompanied Miss Letta Lamkin who sang "Oh Promise Me." The maid of honor wore a pastel colored gown and carried flowers. Both Mr. and Mrs. Knapp have many friends who extend best wishes for their happiness and success. After congratulations lations the bridal party proceeded to the home of the bride where a delicious three course supper was served to about forty guests. Garden flowers graced the home. A most enjoyable evening was spent by all present. Mr. and Mrs. Knapp went to Minneapolis, Minn., where they spent their honeymoon with Mrs. Wm. Schultz, the bride's sister.

Bridge Made Easy

THE SINGLETON LEAD

Assume that east has bid diamonds and the declarer has finally won the contract with a bid of three hearts. Examine the following illustration:

West holds: spades A K; hearts, A X X X; diamonds, X; clubs, J X X X X.

East holds: spades X X X; hearts, X; diamonds, A K Q X X X; clubs, X X X.

West, of course, has the opening lead.

Although east has bid diamonds, west should not open the singleton diamond. He should lead the spade Ace first and then the spade X which he won by the declarer. Declarer will undoubtedly lead a trump and west will win the trick with his heart Ace. Then west should lead the singleton diamond which east will overtake.

East will probably win the next trick at diamonds and then lead a spade which west will trump. Game is prevented by this procedure.

This refers to the singleton lead at trump play. At no trump, the singleton lead is seldom justifiable. (Copyright, 1928, by the Ready Reference Publishing Co.)

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.

Charles D. Atkinson, business manager of the Atlanta, Ga., Journal, says:

That the purpose of advertising is to sell goods or service. When any commercial advertisement neglects to have this purpose for its main objective, then, in reality, it is not an advertisement.

Prestige, general publicity and all other so-called reputation builders are will-o-the-wisps when they are consciously sought to be attained through advertising. All of them follow naturally when advertising to make sales is published in behalf of something which is worthy to be bought. If vanity advertising could be abolished, it is probable that American advertisers would make a net saving of at least $50,000,000 a year. If this enormous amount of money, charged against advertising, were used for the sole purpose of inducing purchases by ultimate users, the effectiveness of advertising would rise many points on the scale and the ratio of advertising cost to sales made would be lowered in the same degree.

No one who has a real interest in advertising will deny the value of research. Advertising programs should have as their foundation adequate market facts. Accepting this as an axiom, a query can then be made if the quest of statistics is not in some instances carried to the extreme of absurdity. An advertiser needs to know not only basic facts of a market as it now exists, but he also needs to make a well-reasoned guess as to how the present market, covered.

When an established advertiser decides to try out a new product, nearly always he selects one or more cities for his purpose. Advertisers in a local newspaper and carefully analyzes the data of this laboratory test.

When an advertiser who relies in whole or in largest part upon periodical, outdoor or direct by mail advertising, is confronted by an emergency which demands an instant increase in sales, immediately he authorizes a quickly prepared campaign of newspaper advertising and he finds that this newspaper advertising pulls him out of the mess.

Both of these kinds of advertisers would find newspaper advertising as a regular part of their program to be a present help of great value and a sound insurance against both squalls and world-wide storms on the sea of business.

RADIUM IN ASHES

London—Radium valued at $400 was recently recovered from an ash heap at St. Thomas Hospital. It was contained in a plaque which, after it had been used for the treatment of a patient, had been wrapped in a mass of adhesive plaster and thrown out by an attendant. It was thrown into the fire before the loss was discovered.

PLANTING TREES.

It is reported from a locality in Iowa about fifty miles north of Davenport that some farmers are setting out walnut trees in large numbers. One has planted 1000 and another has set out 500. The stock is a year old.

We have been too negligent of the duty of putting back trees where we have cleared the land. We are inclined to treat our forests as mines instead of fields to be cultivated.

The fault is based upon the disposition of every man to work for returns to himself. The idea of planting for the next generation does not appeal to us. We take off what we find can be taken at a profit and put nothing back.

The chances are that the men who have planted black walnut trees will not profit much from them. When the trees come into production they will gain something that may be marketed, but the profit probably will not be as great as if the land were used for other purposes. The next generation will be able to sell at a handsome price the walnut logs produced through the foresightedness of the men planting the trees.

Process of removing the large walnut logs from the timber has been going on many years, but the logs are becoming fewer and the prices are higher because of the method of taking out and putting nothing back.

Everything has been sacrificed to bring in more corn land, and now we find that we have too much. Perhaps the farmer of this generation may profit by reducing corn land and increasing timber land by increased prices of corn, even if he does not live long enough to harvest his timber crop.

NEXT YEAR'S WAGON TRAIN.

Historical-minded Californians are planning to traverse once more the old Overland trail from Independence, Mo., to Sutter's Fort in California by ox-drawn wagons. The train is to set out next April and will arrive at its destination five months later. Dressed like early pioneers and supposedly like them, they will jog along, setting up markers at historic points on the route and going through the motions of re-living the experiences of the courageous men and women who crossed the continent in wagon trains to settle the great western country.

It will be harder to re-live those pioneering days than these modern trail-followers imagine. History may repeat itself, but one may reasonably question whether 1929 can repeat 1846 in this matter. Those ox-carts are going to traverse some pretty good pavements, some of the way. There will be no trackless wilderness to penetrate. Pleasant farm land with homes and schools and trees will greet the eye where once were treeless prairies. There will be bridges to cross where once dangerous streams had to be forded.

It will be difficult for next spring's caravan to get away from quick communication, from doctors, from stores, from people. We suspect they will carry pocket flashlights and many other conveniences and comforts undreamed of by their predecessors. When they reach their destination it will be an established community, not the site for one.

The Roy Chapman Andrews expedition brought back tools used in the Gobi desert 150,000 years ago and remains of a highly developed stone age culture. No mention was made in the dispatch, however, about any home brew recipes.

Some people mistake bridge games for slumber parties.

It cost dry enforcement officials $10,000 to close up a couple of New York's night clubs. They must have bought sandwiches at both places.

Recent Parisian newspapers show women bathers with some clothes on. Maybe they actually are planning to go into the water.

A driver arrested in Springfield, Mo., for going 42 miles an hour told the traffic judge he was going faster than that. The very man for the Republicans to nominate in 1932.

While Al Smith was speaking in Syracuse a bull broke loose. Tom Heflin is investigating the rumor that it was a papal bull.

Gene Tunney declined Passenger Levine's invitation to fly from London to Paris. Spurning fame again.

The circus kids got quite a treat when everyone was in his seat, for Coppy staged his training act with lions, brave and bold. And then, the next thing that they knew, he did tricks with a tiger, too. At first he sat upon a box and seemed to growl and scold.

"Now here, do what I tell you to," said Coppy. "I'm not scared of you." And then he cracked his little whip. The tiger calmed right down. It then stood on its big hind paws which shortly brought forth much applause. Then Coppy got a rope and made the monstrous tiger skip.

A lion, nearby, roared aloud and rather scared the circus crowd. But Coppy shouted, "All is well, I'll quiet him right quick." He snapped the lion with his whip and said, "No, don't you get so flip." He made him jump right through a hoop. "Twas quite a clever trick."

Then Clowny came and watched a while. And on his face there broke a smile. He rushed up to the trainer and exclaimed, "I have a hunch. Please bring an elephant out here and I will make the tots all cheer. I'll make it do a lot of things to please this circus bunch."

The elephant was dressed up neat and thumped along on four big feet. He followed little Clowny, and was led inside the tent. A painted tub stood on the ground, and after they paraded round, wee Clowny spied the tub and that is where they promptly went.

"Hey, on that tub please put your feet," cried Clowny. "Come now, do it neat. Of course I mean your front ones. Hurry up! Don't start a row." The elephant began to scold, and then he did as he was told. While standing, perched up very high, he made a lovely bow.

EVERYBODY NOW WANTS TO HEAR SOUND PICTURES

Pioneers in Talking Movies Ride Tide of Prosperity

BY LEON M. SILER

NEW YORK—Motion picture "sound effects"—songs, human speech and all the million and one noises of every day life—are being heard in a thousand theaters over the country now. But the loudest of all "sound picture" sounds is the ring of the cash register.

In theaters equipped to present sound pictures, this particular racket is reverberating as never before.

A Single Instance.

For instance: A single sound film, which the exhibitor agrees to show on a percentage basis, has netted its producers $20,000 a week from a single mid-West theater—with the exhibitor profiting heavily along with the producers, of course.

The same film without sound previously had brought the producers only $1,000 a week from the same theater on a flat rental basis.

So great is the revenue from sound pictures that for the more important ones, percentage contracts between producers and exhibitors largely have replaced flat rental contracts.

Motion picture men thus have come to know that sound pictures will pay and pay big. And speaking of certainties as distinguished from theories and suppositions, that's almost all about sound pictures that they do know.

The Rest—Perplexity

The producers still are grappling with a snarl of perplexities as to how far, and which way, sound pictures ultimately will go. They still are wondering whether they have on their hands a temporary fad, or a development of unquestioned permanence.

They will be mighty happy when the public's attitude crystallizes toward an amusement diet which mixes sound with shadows.

Every film mill in the country is grinding out sound pictures of one sort or another, or is preparing to grind them out. They're playing a resounding industrial oblique to echoes of "Mammy" and "Kol Nidre" as Vitaphones by Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer."

He Touched the Fuse

It was "The Jazz Singer," produced by Warner Bros., that shocked movie magnates at large into their present feverishness of sound picture activity. This feature picture went over with a crash that was most significant and convincing.

In the background of the success of "The Jazz Singer" and its Vitaphone sound producing apparatus is a remarkable story of one man's keen foresight.

Back about 1925, the Western Electric Company and the American Telephone & Telegraph Company invited the big movie men to interest themselves in sound devices for picture theaters which experts of the two companies, working in the Bell laboratories, had designed.

With one exception, they passed the opportunity by. The exception was the late Sam L. Warner, of Warner Bros.

He jumped in with both feet. His brothers—Sam died last year—are coming out bearing bags of gold.

Share License Fees.

Warner couldn't get a contract for exclusive use of the Western Electric's phonograph disc apparatus. But he did get a contract providing:

That Warner Bros. were to have exclusive use of the name "Vitaphone."

That if other movie producers later wanted licenses to use the same apparatus under some other name, Warner Bros. were to get a share of the license fee.

So now all competitors of Warner Bros. who use the Western Electric phonograph disc equipment must contribute to the golden harvest which Warner Bros. are reaping!

The story of William Fox and Movietone is similar.

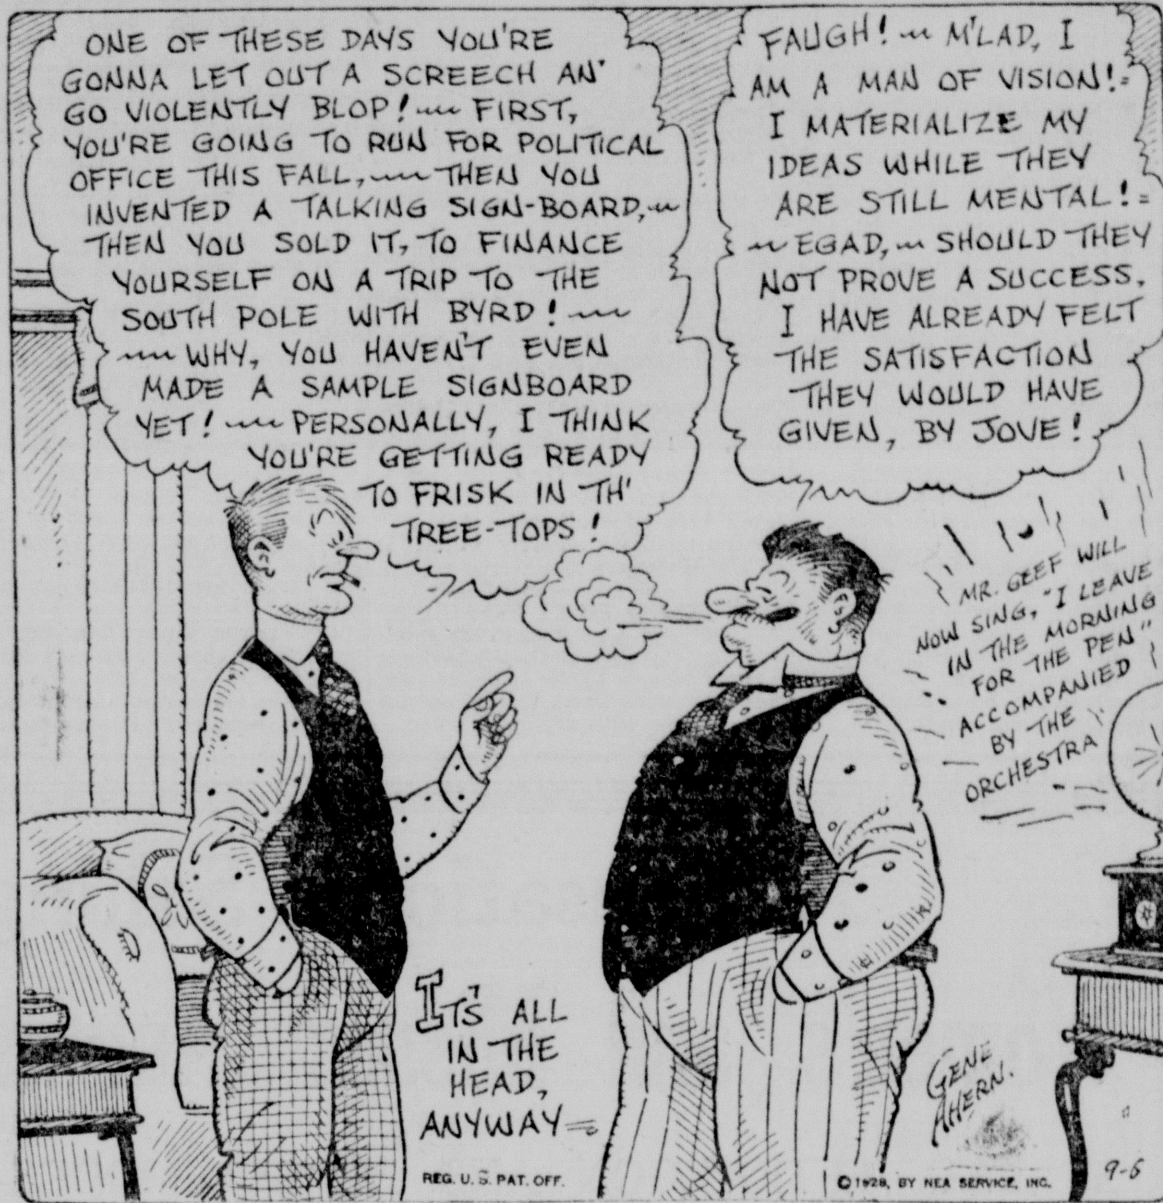

Nineteen years ago Theodore Case, Yale student, began experimenting with what later was to be sound on film. A few years later E. I. Sponable joined him.

Fox Their Backer

They had insufficient funds to commercialize their work. Three years ago, after canvassing the movie industry, they interested Fox. He supplied them with a million dollars.

Now, in Movietone, the Fox-Case Corporation controls a regular mint. The principle of Movietone is the electrical conversion of sound into light and vice versa.

The Western Electric Company has a large finger in the Movietone as well as the Vitaphone pie, for it manufactures all Movietone apparatus.

Sundry other mechanisms are coming on the market. Bristolphone and Nordophone are being advertised. There probably will be many more—with much patent litigation perhaps resulting.

Manufacturers Far Behind.

Western Electric subsidiaries are far from able, at present, to supply the demand for sound equipment. There are 15,000 to 20,000 theaters in the U. S. suitable for sound picture presentation. Only 1000 of them are equipped so far.

The cost of the apparatus is $10,000 to $20,000. That's a tidy sum. But theater owners are in a mad scramble to make the investment.

With patronage of sound pictures at flood tide, added box office receipts often pay for the added equipment in the first two, three or four weeks.

Illinois Briefs

Chicago—Lacking proper authorization to enter Speedway Hospital and Dwight for hospitalization hundreds of former service men have arrived at the two institutions to find there is place for them.

"For emergency hospitalization," L. R. Benston, officer of the Illinois department of American Legion declared, "the veteran must be a real emergency, such as acute illness; serious accident; acute appendicitis; hemorrhage of the lungs. In all such cases a statement of a doctor, preferably the Bureau Examiner and a copy of the man's discharge, or, in absence of such, a statement from the Legion commander, should accompany the veteran to the hospital."

Urbana—Appointment of a "Committee of Seven on Closer Cooperation of Various Agencies" has been announced here by Robert E. Hieronymous, community adviser of the University of Illinois and president of the Illinois Conference on Public Welfare.

Mr. Hieronymous was requested to form the committee and assume chairmanship at the time of the last conference of the American Country Life association here. He has named the following:

A. L. Bowen, editor Illinois State Journal, Springfield, Illinois.

Mrs. H. W. Cheney, editor, League of Women Voters Bulletin, Chicago.

Mrs. Spencer Ewing, formerly president Illinois Federation of Home Bureaus, Bloomington, Illinois.

A. D. McLarty, secretary Illinois Municipal League, Urbana.

Robert C. Moore, secretary Illinois State Teachers' association, Carlinville, Ill.

W. S. Reynolds, director, Chicago Council of Social Agencies, Chicago.

"This committee," Mr. Hieronymous said today, "is taking seriously the opportunity to be of some real service to the communities of Illinois. The members realize the overlapping and duplications of effort in many communities, and in fact that there are fields yet untouched."

"The first tentative report of the committee will be made at the Illinois Conference on Public Welfare at Quincy, September 25 to 28."

Meantime Mr. Hieronymous said, the members have each done some independent thinking and several of them will offer a brief discussion at the meeting of the Illinois Municipal league, at Joliet, September 13. A sectional meeting at the Joliet convention will be devoted to the program of the committee, and discussion of its work.

WITHOUT this handicap, there returns the very natural confidence, joy and cherished pride of possessing a clear skin.

Men and women both justly covet admiration, and you can expect such satisfaction only if you are happy in a clear, unblemished skin.

The sure way to reach this state is through the blood.

Red blood cells are Nature's elements for building and sustaining the body.

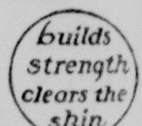

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there can be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

The church was organized in 1848, with Rev. Jonas Hedstrom in charge. The original edifice is still standing and in an excellent state of preservation. There have been twenty-six pastors since its inception.

Springfield—County officials of Illinois plan to ask the next general assembly for an increase in the county tax rate from 25 cents to 40 cents on each $100 of assessed valuation. This is made necessary, the officials resolved in their recent convention, because the legislature has raised the expenses of counties far out of proportion to the income.

Springfield—A bill to compel strip mine owners to resurface the land torn by their machinery so as not to destroy its value for agricultural purposes may be introduced into the next general assembly.

Rep. J. H. Davis of Murphysboro is reported to have communicated with Kansas making it compulsory for strip mine companies to replace the surface in such a manner that the ground will remain productive. Davis' study so far has convinced him that such lands are best available for orchards.

Urbana—Experiences of newspaper editors with "contempt of court" will be one of the interesting departures from the usual, in the program of the 63rd annual convention of the Illinois Press association here, October 11 to 13.

Boyd F. Curley, editor of the Indianapolis Times, winner of the 1927 Pulitzer editorial prize for his fight against political corruption in Indianapolis is one of the speakers invited to participate in the discussion bearing on intimidation of newspapers.

Other prominent newspaper men invited to speak on this and other problems are Carl C. Magee, fighting editor of Albuquerque, New Mexico, now of the Oklahoma News; George R. Dale, editor of the Muncie Post Democrat, who was a leader in the state political upheaval in Indiana; A. T. Spivey, editor of the East St. Louis Journal, and W. J. Smith, former editor of the Waukegan Daily Sun whose city editor went to jail rather than betray a newspaper confidence.

East Moline—Voters of East Moline will pass upon the proposition of issuing a $50,000 bond issue for park purposes at the spring election next year. The bond issue was approved by the city council.

If carried, part of the fund will be used in paying off present debts of the park board contracted by the recent purchase of a tract of land.

Conservation Plan to Make Cheap Land

Springfield, Ill. —(AP)—Thousands of acres of land in downstate Illinois can be purchased under the provisions of the proposed $20,000,000 conservation bond issue law, for $10 or $12 an acre, Charles Mansfield, Jr., secretary of the Illinois Conservation and Flood control association said here today.

This assertion explained the apparent discrepancy pointed out by Shelby M. Singleton of the Legislative Voters League. Mr. Mansfield said, Singleton declared it would be impossible to purchase the contemplated 2,500 acres of land in each county for hunting and fishing preserves, with the twenty million dollars.

"There are hundreds of thousands of acres of land, easily accessible," Mansfield said, "that can be purchased cheaply, some of it as low as ten or twelve dollars an acre because it is worthless for agricultural purposes. The Bond Issue contemplates purchase of this land and not expensive terrain."

"Approval of the bond issue for the purposes provided will not result in one cent of direct taxation. It will result in a slight increase in the license fee charged hunters and fishermen but this will be infinitesimal compared to the added benefits they, as well as every man, woman or child in the state may derive from having a hunting, fishing and recreational preserve open for them in each county."

"This conservation bond issue is solely in the interest of every person in Illinois of moderate means who cannot afford to belong to expensive hunting and fishing clubs or to travel to other states for recreation. It is a non-partisan, non-factional project, endorsed by leading citizens and organizations of the state."

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

THE HUDSON OF THE WEST

(By Bela R. Halderman)

You may journey from the rising to the setting of the sun. From the time the dew is sparkling till the hour when day is done. But wherever you chance to wander the grand scenes you love the best. Will be found northeast of Dixon on "The Hudson of the West."

Where the placid bosom of Rock River softly swells and glides. Where the birch canoe of Black Hawk keenly cut the river's tides; Through whose crystal depths the wild deer from the hunter stole away. And upon whose shimmering surface ducks and geese would bathe and play.

Where the angler baits his hook, and soon the cork bobs on his line; Where adjacent, verdant meadows echo to the lowing kine; Where the thicket shelters rabbits, and in stately trees so tall Many birds and squirrels make music in Nature's orchestral hall.

As you speed along the river on the winding Black Hawk trail. You are passing through a beautiful and history-laden vale. Can't you seem to hear Chief Black Hawk and his painted savage band. When they shout their lusty war-cries as they make their final stand?

Don't you see their teepees pitched and smoke ascending from below? Can't you see "Abe" Lincoln and his men move swiftly toward the foe? Every day they drew more closer, every hour pursuit was pressed. Tumult raged upon Rock River, noble "Hudson of the West."

Grassy slopes and wooded hilltops, elfin glades and ferny bowers. Kiss the bosom of the river baptized by celestial showers. See the tree-tops in the distance on these vast enchanted shores. Fashioned by the hand of Nature, pruned for God's great out-of-doors.

Winding to and fro, you follow the meandering of the stream. While the tranquil beauty lulls you in a never-fading dream. It's a fascinating journey, one you never will regret. Full of sylvan charms alluring, that you cannot soon forget.

And the farther on you travel, still more grand the scenery grows. In this wide seducing valley where Rock River gently flows. There are camping grounds for tourists, and you are a welcomed guest. If you stop at these famed places on "The Hudson of the West."

Famous is the place called "White Rock," like a citadel indeed. Cozy nestled on a high cliff, free from city's grime and greed. It is here you'll meet "Clay" Lehman, owner of this treasured spot. Where the breezes list so soothingly and sunbeams ne'er are hot.

He's a gracious and inviting host, one of a thousand men. And if ever you should camp here once, you're sure to come again. It's his cordial welcome that you'll like, his love to treat you right. Which makes you long to linger in his cottages so white.

Then you cross the restful river on a high, substantial bridge. Where the grandeur of the distant forests rises ridge on ridge. To the right or left, no matter where your eyes may choose to rest. There's the touch of God through Nature on "The Hudson of the West."

Grand Detour is next to greet the happy tourist on this trail. Rich in legendary lore and many a pioneering tale. Here is Goodspeed's to refresh you, and the Colonial Inn. But you'll miss the Hotel Sheffield—ashes mark where it has been.

Over easy dips you travel, winding through this realm divine. Breathe the breath of Mother Nature as she puts her hand in thine; Look you southward, look you northward, to the west or to the east, It's a veritable paradise—a Nature-lover's feast.

Through a short, but rocky canyon you eventually glide. Where the stony battlements and turrets tower above the highway's side. And you sweep in graceful curvings to another camping site. At the foot of Castle Rock, where you can quell your appetite.

Castle Rock, whose sturdy profile looms unsheltered toward the sky. Has a fanciful attraction to the tourist-passer-by. You will want to climb it's sandy slopes and stones thrown in a heap. Just to reach it's sun-kissed summit—view the landscape from the steep.

Then travelling on, the haunts of Nature seem more elegant and dense. You behold infinite glory, wondrous in magnificence. Silent sojourn you may choose in passing through these woody dells. Or in quiet siesta revel, which all pain and gloom dispels.

There's a galaxy of places where re-creating drinks are sold. Candy bars, cigars or sandwich, always fresh and never old. There is Riv-Rock, Chuck's Inn, Malmberg Tavern, all along the route. And at Oregon you're sure to put the hunger-fiend to route.

Then at Twin Isles, or at Dew Drop Inn, or Byron you will find Such exotic fruits and rare viands—just what you had in mind.

INDIAN SONG IN MONGOLIA

GIVES SCIENTIST THEORY New York—(AP)—Realization of hard-sought facts sometimes comes to scientists in unexpected ways. Thus, Ales Hrdlicka, curator, division of physical anthropology, U. S. National Museum. Smithsonian Institution, had realization of the possible origin of the American Indian pour over him while in Asia. "One evening in Mongolia," he says, "at the end of the day, I was sitting down, a bit tired. Suddenly a Mongol was heard coming toward our house, singing. The song was Mongolian. I could not understand the words. But the intonation, the character of the song, was so utterly Indian that I had to turn and shake myself to find where I actually was, to appreciate that I was not among some of my old friends of the Mexican Sierras."

GRID PROSPECTS FOR DIXON HIGH THOUGHT GOOD

Stronger Team Seems Assured: Coaches Start Practice

Early football prospects in the Dixon high school point to a far better organization than last year and with the sounding of the call for candidates, the north side athletic field has been converted into a busy training camp where Coaches Bowers and McMasters are sorting over available material. A total of 23 candidates responded to the annual call for duty on Coach A. C. Bowers' heavyweight crew and the outlook is for a much stronger team than was assembled last year. In addition to a wealth of material from which to select a team, the first crew have an advantage of having some experienced men left over from last year's eleven.

Blackburn is in excellent condition and is expected to make a much better showing than he did last year with his line plunging and long runs. Teeter and Joe Feltes are also experienced men who will appear in the backfield this fall. In the line, Coach Bowers has four veterans in Eno, Flamingam, Schultz and LeSage, with ample additional material in the making to establish a well balanced front with plenty of weight.

In the pony division about seventy-five candidates reported to Coach McMasters for duty at the sounding of the first call. As with the first team there are a number of experienced members, who, barring accidents and injuries, will present a much stronger team than last year. The raw recruits are going through nightly drill and next week will start "skull" practice, getting in readiness for the first game of the season in two weeks. Coach McMasters was obliged to dig to the bottom of his equipment trunks for uniforms for his lightweight crew of candidates and the supply was completely exhausted before all of the willing workers could be outfitted.

ICY WATERS OF LAKE TOO MUCH FOR MARATHONERS

Not One of 199 Swimmers Able to Finish the Long Race

Toronto Sept. 6—(AP)—Just what sort of money prize would be paid to Georges Michel of France for his effort in the Wrigley Marathon of fifteen miles was the question uppermost in the minds of swimming devotees and officials here today. The Canadian swimmer, conqueror of the English Channel and second-place man in the second annual 21-mile Marathon here last year, was in excellent condition and spirits after having been forced out of the race by the chill of Lake Ontario late last evening.

Michel, when hauled from the water, was the sole survivor among the 199 starters, and had covered twelve and one-quarter miles in the rather laborious time of eleven hours and

THE SUPER RACE

The study of man and the ways in which he is affected by his environment is one of the most fascinating of all sciences. Biologists are united in the belief that the last fifty years have brought about some remarkable changes in human beings. The average life span has been increased fully eighteen years over that of a century ago, and it is estimated that the average American is three and a half inches taller than the average of fifty years ago. It is not unusual today to see many people who are over six feet tall, and many hotels have had to install larger beds and longer bathtubs to supply the new requirements.

The increase in the length of life twelve minutes. He apparently strove to remain longer in the race than Ernest Vierkoetter, German Channel victor and champion of the Wrigley Marathon here last year. Vierkoetter covered some twelve miles when taken from the water semi-conscious at 6:42 p. m. Shortly prior to this, Roland H. Tegmeir of Seattle had given up the ghost, and shortly afterward Louis I. Mathias of Long Island, N. Y., followed, leaving Michel alone in the icy lake with evening shadows falling.

All three were in bad shape when removed from the water, but all responded to stimulants administered at the hospital. It was reported that Michel quit the lake last night only after hearing a report that he would be eligible for the $25,000 Wrigley first prize as soon as he covered a greater distance than Vierkoetter had achieved.

The impression gained ground among 150,000 spectators on shore that Michel would receive the prize. An unauthorized statement had gone over the radio asserting that the Frenchman would win the moment he passed Vierkoetter's mark, but Elwood Mogness, sports director of the Canadian Exposition which sponsored the two swims, announced that Michel would not collect the first prize.

is partly due to the better care of infants and children. Infant mortality of fifty years ago was enormous, and today it has become a negligible factor. The better understanding of the effects of food on health has undoubtedly contributed to increased health and physical development, particularly in North America.

Many of the diseases of malnutrition and wrong feeding are becoming obsolete. The deaths from tuberculosis are decreasing year by year. Spinal curvature is now almost unknown. Deaths from rickets and scurvy are inexcusable. Deaths from acute febrile diseases can be avoided in almost every instance if the proper dietetic measures are employed.

People are being taught the value of regular lives and the benefits of the out-of-doors. It is almost impossible for us to realize what a wonderful world we will have in a hundred years from today if progress continues at the same rate that the people who are now fifty years of age have seen in their own lifetimes. Many scientific men now believe that the average age of one hundred years is not impossible. Any of the vital organs of our body are strong enough to live far beyond this great age.

At one time the average length of life was as low as thirty-eight years. Now we have reached the average age of fifty-eight, and yet our knowledge of the care of the human body is being increased day by day. What a glorious future the race can look forward to. The young folks of today should consider themselves very fortunate.

Of course, there are some factors which may mar this accelerated progress. For instance, after the Napoleonic wars it is estimated the average height of the French nation was reduced at least three inches, and after the recent world war the average height of the German youth was one and a half inches less than that at the beginning of the war. If nations can preserve their sanity and avoid these catastrophes they will certainly profit in a remarkable measure. Wars between civilized people are almost inexcusable.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION—M. D. asks: "Is there any possible cure for bowlegs? I am a girl of eighteen, in high school, and have given up gym work and swimming on account of my bowlegs."

ANSWER—Bowlegs may be straightened to some extent if you are only eighteen years old. Rigid dieting is necessary, for you must supply the blood with plenty of bone-building elements. Next in importance is to take all kinds of physical culture exercises to strengthen the entire body. Spinal treatments are also helpful in increasing the circulation of blood to the different parts of the body.

QUESTION—I. U. asks: "What do you consider as really the most important food element?"

ANSWER—Protein is the most important substance used in the building of the body. An ample amount in the daily fare is of the utmost importance in order to effect repairs in the cell structure and muscles, and to bring about the necessary changes in the cells themselves. These cells cannot be replaced or built up with any other substance any more than the worn out parts of an engine can be replaced with gasoline.

QUESTION—Robert D. writes: "In your menus I notice the mention of 'chayote'. What kind of an animal is this? I have asked a number of people but no one seems to know."

ANSWER—The chayote is the fruit of a climbing vine of the cucumber family. It is grown in Mexico and in some of the warmer parts of the United States. The fruit is pale green with a single large seed in the center, which need not be removed for cooking. It resembles the squash in flavor.

INTERPRETATION OF CERTAIN FOOT BALL RULES MADE

Intercollegiate Committee Discussed Some of the Rules

To clear up some uncertainties in the football rules for the coming season the American Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee, has issued the following explanation of certain misunderstood rules and conditions of play:

Rule VIII, Section 1 Rule XX, Section 1 Approved Ruling 13

Question—Is the restraining line for the kicking side on a kick-off the 40-yard line or a line through the actual point from which the ball is kicked? On a free kick after a fair catch, is the restraining line through the point of the catch or through the point from which the ball is kicked?

Answer—On a kick-off the restraining line for the kicking side is the 40-yard line (unless there has been a penalty), as this is the most forward point from which the ball may be kicked. Under Rule XX, Section 1, the ball must be kicked at least as far as the 50-yard line (unless touched by an opponent) before it is in play, or any of the kicking side may recover it. On a free kick after a fair catch, the restraining line for the kicking side is a line through the point of the catch.

Question—If an end of Team A moves out along the line of scrimmage one or more steps, must he come to a full stop of "approximately one second's duration" before the ball is put in play?

Answer—No, but he must be stationary at the moment the ball is put in play. If there is doubt as to his being in motion at the moment the ball is put in play, the penalty must be inflicted.

Rule IX, Sections 5 and 6
Question—After Team A has shifted and has come to a stop for one second and end changes his position on the line and stops for less than a second before a wing-back pivots and come in on the tackle. Is this play legal?

Answer—The play is legal provided the end has stopped before the wing-back pivots and provided the wing-back is moving either directly or clearly in an oblique direction toward his own end line at the moment when the ball is put in play. If the end and back are in motion simultaneously and the ball is put in play before both have come to an absolute stop for a period of approximately one second, the 15-yard penalty must be inflicted, for the two men in motion simultaneously constitute a shift. If the end was stationary when the wing-back started in motion and then the wing-back is in motion forward at the moment when the ball is put in play the 5-yard penalty must be inflicted as provided for in Section 5. (The same rulings would apply if no shift preceded.) In case of doubt in either case the proper penalty should be enforced.

Rule IX, Section 6
Question—This section states that following all shift or huddle plays all players of the side in possession of the ball must come to an absolute stop and remain stationary in their new positions, etc. Are we to interpret this to mean that only the players who participated in a shift or a huddle must remain stationary and that a player who did not shift or huddle may start in motion backward (as provided for in Rule IX, Section 5) before the lapse of one second?

Answer—After a team shifts or huddles all (eleven) players of the side in possession of the ball must come to an absolute stop and remain stationary in their positions without movement of the feet of swaying of the body for a period of approximately one second before the ball is put in play or before the one man in motion (as provided for in Rule IX, Section 5) may start.

Rule IX, Section 6
Question—Following a huddle, the line of forwards of Team A takes a position parallel to and back of the line of scrimmage, from which position they advance or drop to their charging positions. Does this constitute a shift?

Answer—Yes; all players must come to an absolute stop and remain stationary in their positions for a period of approximately one second. In case of doubt the penalty must be enforced.

Rule IX, Section 6
Question—After Team A shifted (or huddled) and took its position for the scrimmage, a tackle of Team A charged into the neutral zone before a period of approximately one second had elapsed and the ball was put in play. Does this foul draw a 5-yard penalty under Rule IX, Section 2, or a 15-yard penalty under Rule IX, Section 6?

Answer—The penalty is 15 yards, as provided for under Rule IX, Section 6, for the reason that all players of Team A did not remain stationary in their positions for a period of approximately one second after the shift (or huddle).

Rule XIV, Section 3
Question—After Team A huddles and takes its position, a second huddle is made for the purpose of changing the signal or informing one or more players who did not get the signal in the first huddle. Is this permissible, provided not more than fifteen seconds were consumed in either huddle and provided not more than thirty seconds were con-summer in putting the ball in play after it was ready for play?

Answer—This is permissible, for the rule states the maximum duration of a huddle is fifteen seconds and a maximum delay of thirty seconds in putting the ball in play.

Rule XVII, Section 1
Question—Team A puts the ball in play by a scrimmage on Team B's one-yard line, quarterback receives the ball from the snapper-back and throws it through the air laterally backward to a half-back a distance of approximately two yards or more. The Team A half-back does not catch the ball; it strikes his body and rolls forward into the end zone where a player of Team A falls upon it and it is declared dead in his possession. How should this play be ruled? How should it be ruled if on the same play a player of Team B had recovered the ball?

Answer—If Team A recovers the ball in the end zone it is a touchdown. If Team B recovers the ball in the end zone or if the ball goes out of bounds in the end zone it is a touchback.

If in the above described play the half-back of Team A had batted the ball across the goal line the penalty of loss of the ball to the opponents at the spot where the foul occurred, as provided for in Rule XV, Section 7, should be inflicted. The exceptions covered in the Note under Rule XV, Section 7, do not permit a player of the team making a protected backward pass to bat the ball toward the opponent's goal. This permission is given only to prevent an opponent from securing the ball and it is manifest that this would not be A's motive in batting a ball passed backward by a member of his own team.

Rule XVII, Section 1
Question—With the ball on its own five-yard line Team A makes a protected backward pass which a player of Team B bats across A's goal line, where a player of Team A recovers it. What is the proper ruling on this play and is the ruling the same as though the ball had continued across the goal line as the result of the pass alone, without the additional impetus which the player of Team B gave to the ball by batting it?

Answer—In either case it is a safety if recovered by Team A, for the original impetus which took the ball across the goal line was furnished by Team A in making the backward pass. In either case if the ball had gone out of bounds in the end zone it would have been a safety; if Team B had recovered the ball in the end zone, it would have been a touchdown.

Rule XVII, Section 6
Question—How long does the eligible player who has gone out of bounds during the play remain ineligible?

Answer—He becomes eligible again only when the ball is touched by a player of the team which did not make the pass as provided for in Section 9 of Rule XVII.

Rule XVII, Section 6
Question—If, on a forward pass from the field of play, an eligible player of Team A runs over the end line, turns and catches the ball in the end zone, is he eligible and is the pass completed?

Answer—The pass is not completed; the eligible player became ineligible when he went out of bounds.

Rule XX, Section 1
Rule XII, Section 8

Question—If a free kick other than a kick-off, the ball goes out of bounds before going 10 yards or being touched by an eligible player, is the kicking team given another trial or is it a out-of-bounds ball belonging to the team which did not kick it?

Answer—The ball must be kicked again. On any free kick the ball is not in play unless it is kicked to or across the line which restrained the team which did not kick it, or is touched by a member of this team.

Rule XXIII, Section 3
Question—On a third down a player of Team A carrying the ball advances it beyond the point to be gained for a first down. After the ball is declared dead a violation of Rule XXI, Section 5, is committed by a player of Team A one yard in advance of the ball. What is the down and distance to be gained?

Answer—It is third down and 14 yards to gain after the distance penalty of 15 yards. This case and similar ones are covered by Rule XXIII, Section 3. Even though the foul occurred after the ball was declared dead the foul grew out of and is considered a part of the play.

Watching the Big Scoreboard

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associate Press Sports Editor)

New York, September 6.—(AP)—In a setting of world's series proportions at the Yankee Stadium, the energetic pupils of Prof. McGillicuddy and the somewhat groggy employees of Col. Ruppert start a forty-game series next Sunday that may have a decisive bearing on the American League pennant race.

For the first time since the Yankees staggered home in 1926, just ahead of Cleveland, this series between the world's champion New Yorkers and the Athletics shifts the major league spotlight from the closeness of the National League's struggles to the main battle in the junior circuit.

On the season's performances, and the formerly demonstrated ability of the Yankees to come through against their chief rivals, especially the Athletics, the clan led by Babe Ruth figures to win. Of the 18 games they have played this season, the Yankees have won 13.

The Athletics have a big edge in pitching. Their attack has been more timely and consistent than that of the Yankees for some time. But the Aces of Mack's twirling staff, such as Grove and Walberg, have seldom been effective against the Yankees this year. Grove has lost only six games all season but five of these defeats were handed to him by New York's clubbers.

Of course all the crudeness of this crucial series will be extracted if the rivals happen to split even in the four games scheduled for Sunday, Tuesday and Wednesday, but there will be sweet music to the business managers in the merry click of the turnstiles, in any event. If every inch of space is not occupied and some 75,000 spectators are not on hand for Sunday's double-header it will be a distinct shock to the box-office boys.

The race for the batting championships of the two big leagues is just about as hot as the pennant struggles. "Tarpley Lou" Gehrig and "Goose" Goslin are locked in the American's big batting bee, while Rogers Hornsby, six-time former champion attempting a come-back, is having a dramatic tussle with Paul Waner, the sensational young Pirate outfielder and 1927 champion.

The Athletics, it seems, stand in imminent need of ball games, even though the obliging Yanks did what they could to help by dividing a pair with the Senators at the Ruppert Stadium yesterday. If the champions with two of their remaining three with Washington, which seems reasonable, the Mackmen cannot invade the Stadium on Sunday in first place even by sweeping their five at Boston. Such a turn of events would send the contenders into their big series in a virtual tie, with the Yankees holding a percentage advantage.

Although the New York lead this morning remained two games, the A's were in a better position for the simple reason that they trailed by only two games in the losing column. Until yesterday's even break by the Yankees, the Philadelphia deficit was marked by a difference of three losing engagements and of only one in the winning column. The runners-up were idle while the champions were at work on the Senators.

Sad Sam Jones, who takes every opportunity to demonstrate that Miller Huggins erred in trading him down the river, held the Yanks to six hits and one run in the opening clash yesterday while his mates fell upon George Pigra for enough of each in the seventh to give Sam a neat victory by 3 to 1. Burke and the elongated Weaver were nowhere nearly so effective in the second skirmish, and Fred Heimach registered an 8 to 3 win.

In a battle of the lower depths, the Tigers turned on the White Sox to win 10 to 2 after the Sox had maltreated the Bengals in a most shameful manner through all the early games of the series. Other clubs in the American League were unscheduled yesterday.

The Giants cleaned up their 1928 affairs with the Phillies by winning a 14 to 3 decision for Larry Benton at the Baker Bowl, his twenty-third of the season. The Clan McGraw won seventeen of its twenty-two engagements against the tail-enders but the Cards already have won five more up for decision. The Red Birds are a fine bet to take at least four of these, and the resulting edge may represent just about the margin by which they will snare the pennant—if they snare it.

The only other activity in the national League yesterday was at Boston where the down-trodden Braves turned to slap the Robins by 9 to 2 and 7 to 1.

Monmouth Team Has Difficult Schedule

Monmouth, Ill.—(AP)—Playing one of the toughest schedules in the Little Nineteen conference, Monmouth college is expected to produce a formidable Red and White grid machine this season. Nine letter men will be back, head football coach W. L. Hart announced today.

Their 1928 gridiron program includes the University of Iowa, Cornell College and Knox College—three of the strongest in their class. Nine games have been arranged for the Monmouth eleven.

Of the number of lettermen who have signified their intentions of returning to the Hart institution, five are backfield men. They include: Captain "Kenne" Walker of College Springs, Iowa; William "Bill" Mohlenbrock of Murphysboro, who was named on the all-conference second basketball team last season; Walter Cork, a plunging fullback from Princeton, Illinois; "Tank" Wilcox, a Stronghurst, Ill., line plunger, and "Eddie" Bencini, another Murphysboro gridders, seeking a backfield berth.

Line material return includes Merle Work, Fort Morgan, Colorado; Tom Ogie, Toulon; Marvin Kelsey, Monmouth and Sam Cataldo from Garner, Iowa.

To fill the four gaps in the Red and White forward wall, Hart will have Scott Wilson, McNeil, Rose, V. Walker, McCartney, H. Mekenson, Smith and Twomey.

With "Bud" Horner and H. Mekenson, Hart expects to develop a pair of ends for his machine. "Parky" Whiteman, out of scrimmage guard years is expected to try for a guard berth. He has the size and the drive, according to observers, and will serve Hart's purpose well, to bolster up the right side of the line. Owsley, frosh numeral winner and the only available experienced pivot will complete the Monmouth forward wall at the center position.

Hart's worries in the backfield are zero and unless all five of his letter men break a leg, he hasn't a thing to bother him. If they do, he can place the ball totting responsibilities on "Johnnie" Ferris, former Hedding prep school half; Ingram, a junior who is very handy on his feet; and Kniss, a sophomore, who has promise of developing into something of a line plunger.

Monmouth's first game is at Naperville with North Central.

PARTY UNITY IS SEEN BY HOOVER THROUGHOUT WEST

No Deflections Among Party Leaders Seen by Nominee

BY JAMES L. WEST

(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Washington, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover's New York address on Oct. 17 will be the fourth and last he will make in the east and south. Soon afterward he will begin his final campaign drive with swing across the continent that will take him to his California home in time to vote on Nov. 6.

His invasion of the Democratic south will be made early in October with a speech at Elizabethton, Tenn., on the sixth of that month at an industrial celebration. Either immediately before or after this trip he will go to Boston to speak in the state where the Republicans are centering a great deal of effort.

While the Republican presidential nominee has decided upon the theme of only his Newark, N. J. talk on Sept. 17, it is now expected that in none of the four will he discuss prohibition.

To Avoid Prohibition

Hoover is represented as feeling that his own position in favor of the Eighteenth Amendment and enforcement of the dry laws is well known; that the issue was definitely drawn with announcement of his Democratic opponent for amendment of the prohibition section of the constitution and that the people would prefer an elucidation of his views on other issues of the campaign.

Since his Tennessee speech will be made at an industrial celebration, Hoover will confine himself largely to a discussion of industrial problems. While he has decided to make only one trip into the south, Hoover is intensely interested in the situation developing there.

It is known, however, that orders have gone forth for Republican leaders to keep hands off in the Anti-Smith movement in the several states between the Mason and Dixon line and to let the Democrats opposing the presidential nominee of their party carry on their campaign independently.

Smith's Foes Busy

Reports received by the Republican standard bearer are that in some southern states Anti-Smith Democrats are perfecting a complete political machine running from a central headquarters down to the voting units in counties and municipalities.

Hoover is more than satisfied with developments in the west and was gratified by the announcement of Senator Schall of Minnesota that he would support the national ticket. With the possible exception of Wisconsin, his reports show that there have been no defections by outstanding party leaders, as in the opposition camp and he believes his own party has developed a unity in this campaign unknown for more than a quarter of a century.

North and South Carolina got a fair idea of what the Flood was like when furious rainstorms sent streams in the two states rampaging. The top photo was taken at a street corner in Asheville, N. INDIAN DEAD GRASS RITE

FADING IN JAZZ INVASION

Garrison, N. D.—(AP)—Jazz has drowned out the beat of the tomtom in the life of young Arrikara Indian braves on the Fort Berthold reservation west of here. As a result the Dead Grass society may have held its last ceremonial.

The Dead Grass society is a secret organization, old as the tribe itself. Each year a week is given over to rites symbolizing the withering of old grass to make way for new.

The Arrikara conception is that the old men are the dead grass and the young men the new growth.

When the ceremony was held recently, all the old braves participated, but the young men and women, more devoted to modern music than to the old chants of their forefathers, remained away.

Consequently the chanting of Red Bear, Bear's Belly and Little Sioux, all veterans of the Custer campaign, held a note of plaintiveness, they felt that the ceremony of the dead grass was passing.

SPEED FEATURE OF KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS PLAY

Some of Best Talent in this City to Appear Tuesday Evening

"Do you like speed? Do you like action? Do you like peppy music, snappy dances, colorful costumes and scenery, laughs galore? So does everyone else. That's why everybody is planning on seeing "Sixty Miles an Hour," the musical comedy presented by the Dixon Council of the Dixon Knights of Columbus, at the Dixon Theater on Sept. 11, 1928.

The casts includes the names of some of Dixon's best known performers. Neil Reagan will be seen at his best in a hard-boiled role that fits "Moon" like a bathing suit fits Clara Bow. William Finefield as "Eddie," who works in a ladies ready to wear will show you the dumbest soldier in the A. E. F. Marian Cahill, as "Sally Dae," abooking representative of a theatrical company will win laurels as a sweetheart and singer. Bob Dixon, as "Sixty Dunn," in love with "Sally," has an ambition to drive a flier at sixty miles an hour, and his ambition is more than realized. "Judge Edwards," William Hansen, as a miserly railroad stock holder, tries to foreclose a mortgage and succeeds in getting his daughter married. "Josephine Edwards," Elizabeth Hennessey, the spinster daughter of the "Judge," finally gets married—And How! "Ben Tracy," Willard Jones, who owns the opera house is postmaster, fire chief and song leader. Don't fail to see him strut his stuff. Mrs. Geraldine Welty, as "Hilda," a Swedish domestic, declares "I bane one fine Yodeler." And does she wonder? Ask the man who owns one. "Mrs. Dunn," Mrs. O. E. Wilcox, the mother of "Sixty," plays the sweet mother role to a perfection. "Colonel Ruffsky," James Prosser, as hard-boiled as they cook them, has a prize winning beauty for a daughter—and does her picture cause a riot? Oh Fireman save my child! Miss Mildred Conley, as the French Madame, spent a year in Paris studying to be able to handle this difficult part. Wait until you see her ironing pants. For three "ten-minute egg soldiers," let us refer you to Peter Phalen, Paul Riley and Rae Arnold.

The tickets for this super-production are on sale now and may be reserved at the box office of the Dixon Theater beginning at 1:30 P. M. on Saturday, Sept. 8th.

During the year 1927, 1,250,000 homes were connected to receive electric service for the first time. During the past seven years the number of households using electricity has a little more than doubled, the total number of homes now being served being 17,800,000. Of these 9,000,000 have been added during the past seven years. At least 62% of the people of the United States live in electrically lighted homes.

It is not only for lighting that electricity is being used in the homes. More and more homes are being equipped with electric machines—refrigerators, washing machines, ironers, dishwashers, vacuum cleaners, electric stoves and appliances of all sorts.

At the same time, the factory use of electricity has practically doubled. In the same seven years the factories of the nation have added nearly 8,000,000 new horse power in electric motors, about 1,250,000 of this horse power having been added in 1927.

The supreme test of a wife's devotion

His silence spelled His Guilt, and yet...

HER face was deathly white. Her heart seemed to stop beating—as she stared in horrified disbelief at the letter clutched in her trembling hand.

A letter to Dave, her husband—from a strange woman—asking for money! It was preposterous. Unthinkable. Oh, it couldn't—couldn't be true!

And yet—who was this woman? Why had she written Dave this letter? Was there, after all, some romantic episode in her husband's life that he had kept hidden from her?

And now, this—this letter—after ten years of perfect comradeship and devotion! Her happiness threatened. Her love-life tottering on the brink of ruin. Dave, the man she had idolized, had trusted implicitly, the father of her children—Surely there had been some terrible mistake. Surely Dave could explain.

But that night, when she quietly handed him the letter, Dave stood with bowed head, in stony silence—his face a mask, to hide—what?

Parachute Jumper Who Dropped Three Miles Seeks New Records

Leaping from an airplane 15,200 feet above Washington, William F. Scott, chief machinist's mate at the naval air station at Anacostia, D. C., broke the navy's record for parachute jumping. Scott, who wore two parachutes, life preserver, goggles, helmet, bicycle leg guards and a few other little safeguards, landed on top of an apartment house, unhurt. Scott, pictured above as he appears just before leaping, soon will try to break the 24,000-foot record held by Captain Albert Stevens of the Army Air Corps.

MYRLE WIND ELEANOR EARLY

COPYRIGHT 1923 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

SYBIL THORNE, pampered and beautiful, is on her way to Havana with MABEL BLAKE, social worker and spinster. Sybil, weary with life and love, has taken the trip in order to find the peace necessary for a decision regarding CRAIG NEWHALL, who has asked her to marry him.

There is a fine fellow, M. Sybil finds herself unable to dismiss the phantom of her soldier-lover. JOHN LAWRENCE, who went to France with the A. E. F. and never returned, Mabel, on the other hand, is frankly man hunting.

The steward comes to their cabin to present the captain's compliments and asks if the ladies would care to join MR. ARNOLD and MR. EUSTIS in the commander's cabin for bridge.

Mabel, who has already met Eustis, becomes wildly excited and borrows Sybil's clothes in order to make an impression.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

CAPTAIN HANNA was short and fat and jolly, with a rolling gait and a big, loud laugh.

John Arnold was a pudgy little man and the hair on the top of his head was thin and getting thinner. He had a small black mustache and a sharp little nose and a tremendous chin. Mr. Arnold was an antique dealer.

Richard Eustis was tall and slim. His hair was light brown and wavy. He wore it rather long and had a habit of shaking it back from his forehead impatiently. His eyes were blue and his skin very pale. His mouth was well-shaped, with lips so vivid they almost seemed to have been painted. He had a crooked little whimsical smile, and one eyebrow quirked up when he talked.

"He looks," thought Sybil, "like a hungry poet. I'll bet Mabel would like to cook him a good meal and run her fingers through his hair."

Arnold was one of those people who love to find mutual acquaintances.

"So you come from Boston?" he queried. "Now I used to know a lot of people in Boston. I'm from New Haven myself. Let's see—do you know George Tracy?—and the Osgoods?—they're the woolen people. You don't? Well, now, that's strange. I suppose you know Mrs. Young—Mrs. Leon Young? Fine old lady . . ."

Eustis was quieter.

"I was asked the steward to bring up Martinis," he said. "Perhaps you had rather have something else?"

Mabel was trying desperately to look sophisticated.

"I simply adore them!" she exclaimed.

And when they came she whispered excitedly to Sybil, "Do you eat the foolish olive, or let it lay?"

The captain had left.

"Make yourselves at home," he told them. "I'll be in later."

EUSTIS, presently, began to devote himself to Sybil. Arnold had Mabel in a cozy corner, chatting of Sandwich glass.

"I've a precious dolphin candlestick I'd like to give you," Sybil heard him say, while Mabel looked as if she would like to choke him.

In vain Sybil tried to make the conversation four-sided. Eustis could be positively rude.

"I'm fed up on antiques," he announced. "And John can't talk about anything else. I'm grateful to you, Miss Blake, for taking him off my hands. By the Lord Harry, I needed a little respite. And now, since we're well rid of John, suppose you and I take a little stroll, Miss Thorne. There's a glorious moon tonight."

"But I thought we were going to play bridge."

Eustis began to devote himself to Sybil. "I'm fed up on antiques," he announced, "and John can't talk about anything else."

"And waste a perfectly good moon!"

"But I'd been anticipating such a nice little game. I'm crazy about bridge, Mr. Eustis."

Mabel, in the corner, interrupted her eloquent companion.

"Run along, Sib, it's too lovely a night for cards. Take my scarf to throw over your shoulders, and don't forget to wish on the moon."

"What did I tell you!" she muttered under her breath, as she flung a bit of flowered chiffon across Sybil's shoulders and grinned despairingly.

THEY were scarcely out of hearing when Eustis turned to Sybil.

BROADWAY ANGEL PLANS TO RETURN TO PULPIT WORK

Rheba Crawford Finds
Evangelism and Marriage Don't Mix

BY PHILIP J. SINNOTT
NEA Service Writer

San Francisco—The girl they called "the Angel of Broadway" helped scores of the White Way's victims to find happiness and contentment—but she hasn't been able to find either of those things for herself.

Broadway's Salvation Army lassie, known in private life as Rheba Crawford, quit her work on the big street four years ago to get married. And now she and her husband, J. Harold Sommers, a war veteran, have separated. Home life, she has found out, is not for her. She has gone back to her first love—preaching the gospel—and is now serving as the ordained minister of a large Congregational church here.

"There is no legal separation, and we haven't talked of a divorce," she says. "We both realize that we are victims of environment and heredity. Both believe that God expects of us only to render the best service to the world that we can, and get as much happiness, light and laughter in return as possible."

Preached on Broadway
Miss Crawford was one of the best known women in New York a few years ago. Nightly she preached on the street corners of Broadway. And cynical, wise-cracking Broadway—looking for a selfish motive behind everything, and often failing to understand the meaning of the word "service"—accepted her at face value. She was winsome and pretty and charming, but Broadway has seen many with those attributes. What stumped Broadway was the fact that she was utterly unselfish and utterly sincere. Those are rare qualities in the White Light district.

So, when she gave up her work to get married, Broadway united in wishing her happiness. Broadway felt that if there was one girl anywhere who deserved a happy married life it was Rheba Crawford.

Miss Crawford at first tried to continue her work. But she felt this was not fair to her husband; so, presently she retired, and the two went to a Florida city and she tried to settle down as a regular, stay-at-home wife.

But it didn't work. The small-talk of their new social set failed of interest of the girl who had been a sort of mother-confessor to vagrants, dancers and down-and-outers. And, by the same token, her own experiences were somewhat "out of bounds" as topics for polite conversation.

"I just found I didn't fit in," she says. "I couldn't work up any enthusiasm over bridge parties. I did not seem to understand parties. Pleasure, to me, had to be spelled in a different way. I felt so sorry for my husband, but I was too old to learn. Even my husband could not understand. I couldn't work up any enthusiasm over gossip when I remembered real heartbreaks and true stories I had seen and listened to."

"I sensed the race on the march, and I was out of the parade. I wondered about the pulpits, about Broadway, about some of my old charges. 'The town was too small, too filled with religious feuds, for me to chance local work.'"

Her husband offered to let her return to the platform, but she refused, vowing that she would stick to the new role she had undertaken. It was no use. A nervous breakdown resulted. Her husband summoned doctors and a long consultation was held; and it was agreed that her place was back in her old environment.

"In Another World"

"We came to realize that my marriage had taken me out of my world into his, and that I would always be a stranger there," she said. "And, in turn, he realized it would be just as bad if he tried to enter my world. So, with every good wish his love could give, he sent me back to the platform."

She paused for a moment, casting her mind's eye back over her eventful life.

"Long ago the first desire to preach God's Word came to me," she went on. "I have described it, but constantly my life's paths have brought me back to the platform or the pulpit. And I have learned much since I preached on Broadway.

"The problems I then could solve so easily for others have been difficult for me to solve for myself. From it all I have gained a much clearer view of that Man whom life chastened long ago. Christ was real to me on Broadway; but he is doubly real today."

"And now I hope men may know Him as the living, loving, laughing Christ of the wedding of Cana in Galilee; the suffering, agonizing Christ of Gethsemane."
